Via doesn't see me as ordinary. She says she does, but if I were ordinary, she wouldn't feel like she needs to protect me as much. And Mom and Dad don't see me as ordinary, either. They see me as extraordinary. I think the only person in the world who realizes how ordinary I am is me. My name is August, by the way. I won't describe what I look like. Whatever you're thinking, it's probably worse.

In the excerpt: "Via doesn't see me as ordinary. She says she does, but if I were ordinary, she wouldn't feel like she needs to protect me as much." We find the usage of the second conditional. This means that:

a) The narrator views there is a possibility that his sister sees him as a normal boy.

b) The narrator viewed there was a possibility that his sister saw him as a normal boy.

c) The narrator states that he is an ordinary boy, despite his looks.

d) The narrator views his situation as a comfortable one, that's why the second conditional is used to express it.

e) The narrator views his situation as an unreal one, like the ones represented by this structure.
